Northfield vs. Hinsdale

Timely hitting and excellent pitching by Newton and Gibson gave Northfield her third victory in six games by a score of 5-3.

Northfield started the scoring in the third when two hits combined with one being hit by a pitched ball gave her two runs. In the seventh two hits gave a run and in the tenth two hits resulted again in two runs.

Hinsdale had one big inning with four hits and three runs, but for the rest of the game were outshone by Northfield.

At bat Farley, De Veer, and Gibson each gathered two hits while only E. La Chance did so for the Hinsdale team. The game was a pitcher's battle with Newton pitching superb ball for five innings only to weaken in the sixth. Gibson allowed only one hit, pitching to but fourteen batters in the last four frames.

Behind the pitchers was almost perfect support, only two errors being made by Northfield and four by Hinsdale.

That Jersey Giant

Last week we reported bigger and better eggs in Northfield. Billy Richardson's Jersey Giant was the producer. Further investigation discloses that the hen is violating the Egg Producing Code for when the outer shell was cracked it disclosed another completely formed egg inside the first one. Someone will probably "crack down" on the culprit but it won't be Billy Richardson the owner.

Garden Club Meeting

Prof. Arnold M. Davis, of the Mass. State College, who was here in April, spoke again to the members of the Northfield Garden Club and their friends, in the Town Hall last Monday evening. His subject, "Plant Protection," was the second of a series on Garden Maintenance.

Mr. Davis stressed the fact, that Garden Sanitation is the most important factor in pest control. He compared the plant to a human being and pointed out that it is just as important for a plant to have sanitary growing conditions as for people. Among the most necessary, are the removal of dead material, withered flowers, weeds, diseased growths and sick plants and destroying them by burning to prevent further contagion. He called attention to the fact that a well fed, healthy plant, like a human being is far less apt to fall a prey to disease or to succumb to the effects of it.

He then gave a list of the various insects, both chewing and sucking, and some of the most common diseases and their effects on the different plants that they infest. In each case, Mr. Davis gave what he considered the best method and formula, either by spraying or dusting, to combat these pests.

These splendid lectures by Mr. Davis, have made the opening meetings of the Northfield Garden Club, unusually pleasant as well as practical. The talks have been packed with useful information of a type that can be applied to the simplest home garden. It is hoped that Mr. Davis will be in Northfield again in the near future.

The next meeting of the Garden Club, which will be in June, is expected to be held in the open air, weather permitting. A box lunch supper and visits to near-by gardens, will be a feature of the program. Details will be announced in a future edition of the Herald.

Week-End Accidents

Tragedy stalked the village over the past week-end. A serious automobile accident resulting in the death of one man and injuries to another occurred on Saturday. On Sunday the body of a woman was found in the river near the Shell bridge.

The woman remains as yet unidentified and considerable mystery surrounds this case. The report of Medical Examiner Stetson is expected momentarily.

Scout Jamboree

Jamboree is the name used in the Boy Scout movement for a get-together, usually outdoors, all the way from a local troop to an international meet including Scouts from over 60 nations and tribes. Living in tents; competition in knot-tying, fire by friction, fire by flint and steel, and burling; demonstrations of first aid, signaling, stretcher drill, erection of tents, etc.; and exhibits of handicraft, leather and brass work, are among activities featured at a jamboree.

The second annual Jamboree of the Hampshire-Franklin district takes place tomorrow in Northampton. Troop 9 of Northfield will be represented by 15 or more Scouts under Scoutmaster Lewis Wood, and by the Troop Committee consisting of George McEwan, Lester E. Polhemus and A. P. Pitt. About 1,000 Scouts from the two counties are expected in all.

Northampton is making much of the Jamboree. The city will be decorated. A parade will be reviewed in front of the City Hall by the mayor and city officials and distinguished guests. The Jamboree will be in the Fair Grounds, some of the buildings being used for indoor exhibits. The parade starts at 1:30 P. M. sharp. There will be five bands and drum and bugle corps in the line of march, and American colors and troop flags gallop.

Our boys plan to go to Northampton this afternoon and sleep under canvas in Camp-Ral, on the Fair Grounds. Everything will be under expert Scout supervision. It will be a grand experience throughout for the boys.

The Fair Grounds and the contests and exhibitions will be open free to visitors. Friends of the Scout movement are urged to be present. Those of our townspeople who contribute toward overhead expenses of Troop 9 can see what their money helps to accomplish in the development and morale of the boys. If the weather is stormy the Jamboree will be postponed one week.

On to Northampton tomorrow!

No Word!

IT is now February 26. For ten days the Club has received no direct word from Arthur Abele in Little America. The interruption is due to several things. One of these is the fact that the engineers are changing the radio equipment at Little America and installing directional antennae so that future messages, stories and broadcasts will come through perfectly. Messages are now being received by Admiral Byrd and his men on the ice but they are unable to send messages out. We should be receiving our stories in another few days now and we bet they will be exciting stuff!

Richard C. Hoyt, Little America.

Radio Man The last of the supplies are being brought in from the various caches on the ice and the winter quarters are being made as comfortable as possible. Captain Allan Innes-Taylor, in charge of Admiral Byrd's dog department, has left with three other men for a 300 mile journey back toward Carmen Land to establish a food base as part of the scientific program of the expedition. A crack which is developing in the ice in back of Little America is causing the Admiral some concern and he is taking his usual early and wise precautions. When Arthur's stories start coming through again, we hope he will tell us all about that dog sled journey so you may mark it properly on your Club maps.

This delay gives us a chance to tell you about an interesting member of the Club who is not on the Expedition but is a very important member of it. This is Richard C. Hoyt who, with his radio receiving set, constitutes the northern end of the 10,000 mile air line that transmits the stories from President Abele and Lieut. Comdr. George Noville, who are collaborating in keeping the now 12,000 Club members informed about the doings down at the bottom of the world. From midnight to 8 a.m. every night except Wednesdays, Dick Hoyt is tuned to his set, high in the radio room of the Mackay Radio and Telegraph Company, on Broad Street, New York, and receives Abele's stories, expedition news bulletins, messages to families and all the other "word traffic" which goes in between this scientific Expedition and the outside world. Hoyt is a cartoonist, a photographer, a wood-carver and, he says, a fairly good sailor, in addition to being an expert radio operator. And what do you think he does on his days off? He is an amateur wireless operator! In this capacity his name is "W2FFL" and he is an active member of the Naval Militia.

This week we had a most interesting visit from D. G. Shook, in charge of the expedition mail bureau at Washington, and he asked us to explain to the Club members how they can have letters or envelopes addressed to them actually sent from Little America with the cancelled Byrd Antarctic Expedition II stamp. On January 30th, President Roosevelt's birthday, Admiral Byrd opened in Little America the most remote official post office in the domain of the United States.

There will be only two cancellation dates for the mail sent from Little America. One of these dates will be that of the opening of the Little America Post Office on President Roosevelt's birthday. It is, of course, too late now to send mail for that dating. The second date has not yet been decided but letters for this second cancellation are now being accepted by the Postmaster for delivery about a year from now.

Those who wish to receive or send officially stamped letters from Little America may send as many letters as they desire, addressed to themselves or to friends. The addressed letters should be left unstamped and should be inserted in another envelope with the usual domestic postage affixed. Enclose a postal money order for 53 cents payable to the Byrd Antarctic Expedition. The outside envelope should then be addressed to the Byrd Antarctic Expedition II, care of The Postmaster, Washington, D. C. Do not address these letters to the Club. We are simply telling you about this mail arrangement for your information and to render additional service to the Expedition. All the letters you send addressed to yourself or your friends will be packed at Washington and sent to San Francisco by train. Then they will go by steamship to New Zealand where they will be placed on board the Expedition's flagship, Jacob Ruppert, and the Bear of Oakland, which will take them next December or January to the Ross Ice Barrier. There they will be unloaded and hauled by dog team to Little America where they will be postmarked and returned to you and the other recipients. By the time they get back they will have traveled almost 25,000 miles and, with the beautiful stamp and the interesting official cancellation from the Little America Post Office, they will make a wonderful souvenir for years to come.

Readers of these stories are applying for membership cards and the free map of the South Polar regions faster than we can take care of them with the Club's small staff. We have 12,000 members already and pretty soon we shall be one of the biggest Clubs in the world. In addition to the lapel button which we expect to send out in the near future, we are going to send diagrams of some of the equipment being used on this great Expedition. In the meantime, if you would like to join the Club, without cost, and receive one of the free working maps so you can keep track of all the Expedition flights, exploration trips, etc., simply send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Arthur Abele, Jr., President Little America Aviation & Exploration Club, Hotel Lexington, 48th Street and Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y.

If You Don't Care for Life and Limb, Look Out for Your Pocket Book

NEW YORK—Higher speeds of today's motor cars, with quicker pickups and stops demanded by modern congested traffic conditions are among the chief causes of skidding and more rapid wear on tires, according to Iowa State College which has just completed the most thorough investigation of skidding ever made. Of the 756,500 automobile accidents in the United States last year, 27,160 were directly chargeable to skidding. These caused the death of 1,420 persons and injury to 20,200.

Average gain in engine power since 1929 is estimated at 40 per cent; the gain in car weights, 15 per cent; the gain in acceleration 24 per cent. Non-skid roads with sand paper surface offer greatest mechanical resistance to skidding but are harder on tires. Modern conditions have issued a new challenge to tire makers, the experts say. If you don't care for life and limb, look out for your tire bills.

Memorial Day, May 30, 1934

(A ten-minute address on Memorial Day prepared by the
V. F. W. Department of Americanism)

The pulse of a mighty nation throbs with increased devotion today in memory of its fallen brave. Once again the people of America keep annual tryst with their beloved dead. Homage and tribute we offer at the tombs of those who have died that this great Republic might live and prosper. Within every heart there swells the highest emotion of gratitude for the service they gave. Flowers of sweet remembrance, placed by loving hands on grass-grown graves, express in symbolic terms the sincere appreciation and tender affection this nation bears for its heroic dead. The service they gave is immortal. Their collective contribution to America's greatness is etched in undying glory on the rocks of time, constituting a priceless heritage for freedom and democracy that we, the living, should ever cherish and hold high.

We come to the observance of this Memorial Day not alone for the purpose of paying tribute to the war dead. Long has it been the custom in this country to remember on Memorial Day all our loved ones who have passed beyond life's threshold into that great and undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns. It is well to pause and rekindle the flame of love that burns for those whom death has taken away. We realize, however, that Memorial Day was originally conceived to honor those who fell in the lists of battle and it will ever be the primary purpose of this observance to revere the memory and the glorious service they gave to the Flag of our Country.

On this day of memories we turn back the pages of the past and from the gloom of eternity we resurrect, in spirit, those unquenchable warriors who fought ever gloriously for America and American ideals. In spirit we see them once again. They are marching across the ramparts of time, swinging along, heads erect, shoulders back, ever marching onward courageous and unafraid. Across the pale of the years we see a new nation born into the world and we visualize the bitter struggles of our men at Valley Forge, at Saratoga, at Brandywine—fighting for the principles of freedom they gained with ultimate victory at Yorktown. A new trail is broken through the vast wilderness of the West and down through the years our men continue to march for the building of a great empire. We see them at Gettysburg, Antietam, Shiloh—we are with them at Manila Bay and as they storm the heights of San Juan Hill. Within the memory of most of us assembled here today we see them, the youth of our great nation, fighting the battle of God and Home and Country across the seas, advancing in the face of the grim Spectre to achieve victory at Cantigny, Chateau Thierry and the Argonne on the Western Front. And on this Memorial Day, to use the blessed phrase of Ethel Barber, we pay tribute "to that vast company of American youth who braved hardship, endured suffering and finally passed out of the sight of men by the path of duty."

I know it is customary, on occasions such as this, to recount the glories and the achievements of the living and of the dead. I know it is expected that he who speaks on Memorial Day or about Memorial Day, shall bring his meed of spoken tribute to those who, down through the years, have made the supreme sacrifice that this nation might endure. But I believe that the highest tribute that you or I or anyone can pay to those who no longer answer to the roll calls, is to carry on, to stand firm for the basic truths, loyalty, and the principles of freedom to which they gave the "last full measure of devotion."

On this day there inevitably comes to our minds stark memories of the last great conflict; memories of the courage and unselfish sacrifice which has characterized this nation's greatness throughout its history; memories, too, of the gladness that filled our hearts when news came that the last shot had been fired. Armistic

Day and this day of memories have much in common. Who of us indeed can ever forget that memorable morning nearly sixteen years ago when the roar of conflict along the far-flung fronts of the embattled nations was suddenly hushed?

That was a poignant, eloquent silence. Most of us here can testify to that. It hushed the whole world from the capitol of the nations to factories, cottages and farms, and to hamlets and little towns in every land beneath the sun. It came with benediction and tenderness to soldier hearts in the battle lines, to pain-wracked, tortured bodies in the hospitals behind them, to tent-nerved men on fighting ships and merchant craft dotting the seven seas. It came to countless hearts of women waiting everywhere, waiting bravely, tight-lipped, dry-eyed, with mingled hopes and fears. But most of all it came with gentlest, tenderest touch to those women who sat and waited in a vast loneliness, waited knowing that the waiting and the hurt of waiting must go on forever; waited knowing the priceless sacrifice had been made for us and for generations yet unborn, by those who had learned the great paradox, that life holds things even greater and dearer than life itself; they waited, knowing that the sacrifice would not have been in vain if we who remained and those who shall come after us would keep the faith with the same uncompromising courage as they who died had kept it. They waited as the women before them have waited down through the years from Valley Forge.

Who of us, indeed, can ever forget how that silence was broken in wild exultant shouting, a tumult of delicious joy. We know how tears and cheers mingled. We know how words poured out incoherently as men and women struggled vainly to express the surging emotions that gripped their hearts and clutched their throats. No, my friends, it is not difficult to recall those scenes of 1918, nor to visualize similar scenes back through the history of America. And there welled up involuntarily from the depths of the hearts of men and women everywhere, the prayer, unphrased and unspoken perhaps, but alive with devout genuineness: "Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet, Lest we forget, lest we forget."

Let us ask ourselves if we have forgotten. Have we lost, in the work-a-day world, in the struggle for self and place and power, that which they—men and women comrades of our immortal legion of fallen brave—won for us? Have we kept the faith with those who sacrificed their lives, or with those of broken body or mind who gave that this nation might live?

Let us go in imagination and in reverent memory to the tomb in Arlington where sleeps The Unknown Soldier. Let us go on, with an added tenderness in our hearts, to those sons of America who sleep in God beneath the simple marble headstones on which is graven: "Here rests in honored glory an American soldier known but to God." Let us go on to the resting places of those who fell at San Juan and Manila, to those of the Blue and Grey alike, and to those of Valley Forge and Brandywine. And, standing there with this vision of our immortal legion before us, and with bowed heads, let us ask ourselves again, each and every one of us, have we kept faith?

Nothing that I can say here today will adequately answer these vital questions. The answers must lie in your own hearts.

No credit accrues to them who constantly decry those who believe in their country and its constitution and who are willing to and have fought for the principles upon which it is founded, nor the decrying of those who, since the birth of this nation, have laid down their lives and fortunes that it may be preserved. Those who indulge in it have no compunction about distorting history and records in their frantic efforts to make a case for their shouting of "militarism," and "Treasury Raiders." How doubly forgetful are those few who proclaim it from

DEALER ADVERTISEMENT

WHY do you suppose Chevrolet keeps repeating, in all of its advertising, "Drive it only 5 miles"? Very frankly, here's the reason: Chevrolet engineers have tried out all the various makes of cars in today's low-price field. They have compared performance—on rough roads, in traffic, over hills, through sand and mud and water! And they have proved, to their complete satisfaction, the same things that hundreds of thousands of Chevrolet owners are proving in their daily driving. The Chevrolet ride simply can't be matched by any other in the low-price field. That's why we urge you to "Drive it only 5 miles"—and that's why we promise, "you'll never be satisfied with any other low-priced car."

the pulpits of our churches and embalm it in their biased, insincere and propagandized conferences. Have they forgotten or do they choose to overlook that it was to a soldier, a Roman centurion, to whom it was said: "Such faith have I not found, no, not in Israel!" Have they forgotten that on that lonely hill outside of Jerusalem it was the captain of the guard who looked up and said: "Truly, this was the Son of God?" Have they forgotten that it was Cornelius, the Roman centurion, a soldier in the armies of Imperial Rome, who was the instrument used to teach even Peter the truth as to what was clean and unclean? It was not a soldier who betrayed the Man of Galilee, but the keeper of the silver. It was not a sword that was the symbol of betrayal, but a kiss. It is well to recall these things and that we do not forget them.

It is the right and duty of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States to protest against this unreal, untrue and insidious gospel of internationalism, pacifism, socialism and communism, all of which walk hand in hand through the legislative halls of our country, through our churches, our schools and young peoples' Christian associations, while certain tax-evading financial interests decry the veteran and debauch his family, and politicians in high places evict disabled soldiers from government hospitals.

Are we, the citizens of this great country, keeping the faith? What is happening to the victories of our glorious dead, down through the history of our country? Have we kept the faith with our immortal dead? Each of us, in his own heart, knows how he must answer to that great company of American youth.

Nothing can express the thought in a more fitting manner than these beautiful verses, born in the very welter of war, "In Flanders Fields," written by Colonel John McCrae, who was later killed in action. There is no need to repeat them for they are graven on the hearts of men. But let us keep before us these final meaningful lines:

"To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders Fields."

For America, if we are to endure there can be but one answer and that is expressed in the equally beautiful lines written by R. W. Willard after the death of Colonel McCrae:

"Rest ye in peace, ye Flanders dead,
The fight that ye so bravely led We've taken up. And we will keep
True faith with you who lie asleep
With each a cross to mark his bed,
And poppies blowing overhead,
Where once his own life blood ran
red
In Flanders Fields."

Fear not that ye have died for naught:
The torch ye threw to us we caught,
Ten million hands will hold it high,
And Freedom's light will never die!
We've learned the lesson that ye taught."

That, my friends, is the pledge of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States which has consecrated itself to protect the disabled veteran; to maintain and extend the institutions of American freedom; to perpetuate the memory and history of our dead; to maintain true allegiance to the Government of the United States of America, and fidelity to its Constitution and laws; to foster true patriotism; and to preserve and defend the United States from all her enemies, whomsoever.

Un to April 15, the Vermont bureau of publicity received 1,265 more requests for Vermont information than it had received up to the same date last year. This increase is to some extent accounted for by some heavier early advertising this year, but, coupled with reports of an upward trend in other resort centers, it is taken as an optimistic sign for business this summer in Vermont.

Strawberries Coming Into Markets Now

Jam Recipes Need Changing For Unusual 1934 Crop
By Alice Blake

There is good news for housewives, like you and me, in advance reports of the strawberry season which is almost upon us. This is going to be a plentiful strawberry year. Jelly experts are telling us, however, that weather conditions have been unusual this year and fruits may vary more widely than usual in moisture content. For 1934 berries, they say that strawberry jam, made by the short-boil method should be boiled four minutes instead of the usual one minute. For even better results and keener flavor, add the juice of half a lemon to the fruit and sugar mixture.

For strawberry jelly they say to boil the fruit juice and sugar mixture four minutes before adding the pectin, as well as half a minute after, and be sure to add the juice of one lemon.

Already, big, red, juicy strawberries are seen in the markets, heralding a plentiful fruit season. When you see them and think of the many different ways in which you can use finished jams and jellies made from them, the urge to shine up the preserving kettle will get hold of you. I'm sure.

Strawberry jam on toast is as good a way to begin the day as getting out of bed with the right foot. A strawberry jelly sandwich in a child's luncheon kit or on his plate at the noonday meal solves many a mother's problem—and delights the child.

So when you begin to look ahead, at the prospect of hundreds of fall and winter meals, you may be glad that recipes, such as those given below, are at hand and easy to follow. Please note, carefully, that these recipes have been adjusted to meet the peculiarities of the 1934 strawberry crop.

Another point: Once your jelly is made, give it a generous amount of time before you decide as to whether or not you have made a perfect job of it. Most jams and jellies get progressively firmer for a week to a month after they are made.

Strawberry Jelly

4 cups (2 lbs.) juice
7½ cups (3½ lbs.) sugar
2 tablespoons strained lemon juice
1 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare juice, crush thoroughly or grind about 3 quarts fully ripe berries. Place in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. Squeeze and strain the juice from 1 medium lemon.

Measure sugar, strawberry juice, and lemon juice into large sauce-pan, mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. To reduce foaming, ¼ teaspoon of butter may be added. Boil hard 4 minutes, stirring constantly. Add bottled fruit pectin, then bring again to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about 10 glasses (6 fluid ounces each.)

Strawberry Jam

4 cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit
7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, grind about 2 quarts fully ripe berries or crush so that each berry is reduced to a pulp. Squeeze juice from ½ small lemon.

Measure sugar, prepared fruit, and lemon juice into large kettle, mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. To reduce foaming, ¼ teaspoon butter may be added. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 4 minutes, remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 10 glasses (6 fluid ounces each.)

PUBLIC SCHOOL COMPENDIUM

A need has long been felt for a compendium for quick reference on authoritative information about the American public school, its history, support and needs. Such a work will be released on May 15th by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, 1201 16th St., N. W., Washington, D. C. It was edited by Miss Charl Williams, field secretary of the National Education Association and fifth vice-president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

It contains chapters contributed by leaders in the various fields of education, which tell in simple, nontechnical terms, the inspiring story of the development of the public school and its place in the social order. Contributors to Our Public Schools include Dr. John H. Finley, of the New York Times, who in the opening chapter makes a plea for "Public Education as a Safeguard to Democracy"; Edgar W. Knight, University of North Carolina, who outlines the history of the American schools; William G. Carr, of the National Education Association, assisted by A. L. Threlkeld, Superintendent of Schools, Denver, and Harley L. Lutz, of Princeton, on the question of public revenues and taxation.

Other contributors are William John Cooper, former U. S. Commissioner of Education; Carleton Washburne, Superintendent of Schools, Winnetka; Lucy Gage, George Peabody College for Teachers; Arthur B. Moehlman, University of Michigan; George D. Strayer, Teachers College, Columbia University; Jesse H. Newlon, Teachers College, Columbia University; Julia Wright Merrill, American Library Association; Nora Beust, University of North Carolina; Elizabeth Robertson, Chicago Public Schools; J. W. Faust, National Recreation Association; Joy Elmer Morgan, editor, Journal of the National Education Association; John K. Norton, Teachers College, Columbia University; Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior; Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, first vice-president, National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

How the school is organized, what it is striving to accomplish, how it is supported, the part played by parents and teachers, and by other publicly-supported educational agencies, are among the topics discussed in this textbook on the public schools.

In speaking of the work Mrs. Hugh Bradford, president, National Congress of Parents and Teachers, says: "It will give such an understanding of the subject as any layman should have if he is to take his part in shaping the educational policy of the community. We have learned during the past few years that adequate support for schools cannot be taken for granted; that the friends of education and believers in democracy must be on the alert as never before to interpret school service to citizens throughout the nation."

Poppy Day

Children whose fathers were killed or disabled on the poppy-studded battlefields of France will be among those benefited by "Poppy Day," Saturday, May 26th, when replicas of the French poppies will be worn throughout the United States in tribute to the World War dead. Mrs. Mattern, chairman of the child welfare committee of Haven H. Spencer unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, explained today in an appeal for a generous response to the Auxiliary's poppy activity.

The funds donated for the little red memorial flowers will go to support the work of the Legion and Auxiliary for the welfare of the disabled veterans and the children left fatherless by the war. Mrs. Mattern stated. The bulk of the funds collected here will be used by the local Legion and Auxiliary organizations in meeting the needs of disabled veterans and needy children of veterans in this city during the coming year.

"The welfare of veterans' children is a constantly expanding responsibility of the American Legion Auxiliary," Mrs. Mattern. "Injuries and diseases of the war are taking a steady toll from the ranks of the veterans, and nearly every veteran now dying or becoming disabled has dependent children. My committee is at work continuously bringing aid and care to such children, and we look to poppy contributions for the chief support of this work."

"Every penny of the dimes, quarters and dollars dropped into the contribution boxes of the poppy workers Saturday, above the bare cost of the materials in the flowers, will go to the disabled and the children. The poppies have been made by disabled veterans and the workers who will distribute them on the streets have volunteered their services. When the people of Northfield contribute for their poppies, they can be sure they are giving directly to the welfare of the war's living victims."
